Classrooms are becoming more and more oriented towards maker-space and creative space organization. If you are looking for ideas to create more spaces like this in your building, or are interested in taking your own students off-site to such an experience, the May IBMA Coordinator meeting is perfect for you!

This year, we are being hosted by the National Building Museum in Washington D.C. Join IBMA on Friday, May 31st for our final quarterly coordinator meeting of the year.

As always, IBMA meetings are free of charge.

Here are the details for the day:

- 9:00-10:00 Introduction to the Museum and General IBMA Meeting
- 10:00-12:00 Coordinators break into groups to participate in Museum programs in classrooms (ie: “City by Design” or “Designing for Disaster”). For full descriptions of sessions, please visit: <https://www.nbm.org/learn/schools-teachers/grades-5-9-school-groups/>
- 12:00-1:00 Lunch
