

Approaches to teaching and learning in the Diploma Programme: Reflection tool

This tool has been designed to help Diploma Programme (DP) teachers "audit" and reflect upon approaches to teaching and learning in their classrooms. It is intended as a tool to help individual teachers reflect on their current practice, as well as a way to promote and stimulate discussion between colleagues within and across departments.

This tool consists of two sections.

Section 1: Approaches to learning

This section consists of five elements: thinking skills, communication skills, social skills, selfmanagement skills, and research skills.

When answering these questions teachers should focus on their experience in their classroom with their DP students. The questions will ask teachers to think about a recent unit/topic they taught their DP students, and ask them to indicate how often they provided opportunities for students to demonstrate a particular skill or behaviour.

Section 2: Approaches to teaching

This section consists of six elements: teaching through inquiry, teaching through concepts, teaching developed in local and global contexts, teaching focused on effective teamwork and collaboration, teaching differentiated to meet the needs of all learners, and teaching informed by assessment.

When answering these questions teachers should focus on their experience in their classroom with their DP students. The questions will ask teachers to think about a recent unit/topic they taught their DP students, and ask them to indicate how often they utilised particular teaching strategies.

There are good reasons why particularly approaches or strategies may not be used or may not be appropriate for a particular unit. However, regular use of this tool can help teachers to identify patterns in their use, or lack of use, of a particular approach across multiple units.

1. a) Thinking skills

Note: When answering these questions you should focus on your experience in your classroom with your DP students. The questions will ask you to think about a recent unit/topic you taught your DP students, and ask you to indicate how often you provided opportunities for students to demonstrate a particular behaviour associated with an ATL skill.
